The Marine Forces Pacific Band pauses briefly before stepping out again in downtown New Orleans during the 2003 Mardi Gras carnival celebration. The band performed in three parades during Mardi Gras, marching an average of seven miles per performance. Mardi Gras first came to Louisiana in 1699 through its French heritage.

The Marine Forces Pacific Band performs a mind-boggling 600 times a year on average, at events ranging from retirement ceremonies to elementary school assemblies to Christmas parties and everything in between.

But every now and then the band gets to let its hair down (all three inches of it) and rock out at the "biggest free show on earth" — Mardi Gras.

"Mardi Gras is like that old saying," said Sgt. Gary Gilbert, a saxophonist from Gettysburg, Pa. "If you have to ask, you wouldn't understand."

When asked to describe Mardi Gras in one word, Cpl. Benjamin Pierce, a clarinet player from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, shook his head as if reminiscing, and, with a wry smile, muttered, "Unbelievable."

It was in fact hard to believe that the band even got the opportunity to perform at Mardi Gras, an annual carnival extraordinaire that came to New Orleans through its French heritage in 1699.

"At first the trip was on, then it was off, then it was on again, then it was off," said Gunnery Sgt. Roberto Leal, the enlisted band conductor and a euphonium player from Carrizo Springs, Texas. "Through all the ups and downs, the band kept rehearsing, practicing and plugging away. Then, at the last minute, the call came that the trip was locked on — and we were ready."

That notion was made clearly evident by the crowds' response to the MarForPac Bands' performances at Mardi Gras.

"I think we caught the revelers off-guard," said Pierce. "New Orleans is the home of jazz and Dixieland music, and we just seemed to soak in that spirit. We showed up and, basically, 'got down.'"

"We were jamming, and the crowd was like 'Wow!' I think they were expecting us to be stiff and rigid, but we definitely showed them another side of the Marine Corps."

And the Marines got to see another side of the fans as well — literally.

"But to the band's credit, we all kept our bearing, remained professional, and stayed focused," said Leal. "I was very proud of how we conducted ourselves in the midst of all the distractions."

Many more revelers showed their appreciation to the Marines in more respectful ways.

"The best part of the trip for me was when people would approach us and thank us, not just for performing at Mardi Gras, but simply for being Marines," said Sgt. Martha Johnson, a flutist from Westminster, Md. "It felt good to be appreciated, especially with the war on everybody's mind."

"It gave me the sense that the vast majority of Americans support us, and understand our job, which is ultimately to keep Americans free," explained Johnson.

Child care providers list now available

Bobbie Brock
MCCS Public Relations

The first five years of a child's life are especially important in his or her growth and development.

Available to assist parents during this very crucial time, Family Child Care is a special place for children to grow and learn. Its certified providers have training in child development, nutrition, guidance and more.

The talented people at Family Child Care have a love and joy for young children, and they provide a safe, fun and educational environment for all ages.

Child care in a home setting is especially beneficial for young children, where they have the opportunity to learn and grow in a safe, nurturing environment, with a small provider-to-child ratio.

In homes, each provider takes care of up to six children, allowing each child to have time and attention while making special friendships. Further, children of varying ages can work together, learning to share with friends and siblings.

Marine Corps Base Hawaii's Family Child Care providers spend quality time with each child, supporting his or her self-esteem and social skills, which promote success in school. Providers have the opportunity to engage each child in conversation, both individually and in informal group activities. As well, reviewing colors, numbers and letters through song and play helps to prepare children for kindergarten.

One of their most beneficial aspects, Family Child Care providers offer a flexible schedule. Many offer evening, weekend or overnight care. Regular enrollment options include full-day, part-day and hourly care.

Individual providers set weekly rates, and many providers participate in the direct cash payment plan, a tuition assistance program for some DoD income category families.

To find a child care provider, parents should check with Resource and Referral in the Children, Youth, and Teen Programs Office, or call 257-7430.

The office can provide a list of available providers and the enrollment options each one offers.

Parents are encouraged to meet and spend time with potential providers, choosing one who shares the same goals and provides the most appropriate environment for their child.

For more information about how to become a child care provider at MCB Hawaii, call the Family Child Care Office at 257-7030.

Family Day barbecue extends 'thanks' to MCAF

Lance Cpl. Monroe F. Seigle
Combat Correspondent

The scent of barbecue on the grill and the sounds of kids at play set a relaxing scene for Marines and family members of Marine Corps Air Facility March 21. However, the tranquility soon gave way to intrigue as participants watched a car get shredded to pieces by the "jaws of life."

This is how the MCAF aboard MCB Hawaii, Kaneohe Bay, said "thanks" to its supportive family. A Family Day barbecue was coordinated by the Aircraft Rescue and Firefighting facility, complete with a variety of entertainment. Children played in a bouncy house and were entertained by Sparky the Dog, the mascot for fire departments all across Hawaii.

Parents and children listened to the Marine Forces Pacific Band's live performance, reviewed a static display from the Base Fire Department, visited aircraft personnel and looked at several different types of equipment used in firefighting.

"We wanted to show the families all the different sections of MCAF and [have them] learn about all the resources available on base," said Lt. Col. Michael

Lance Cpl. Monroe F. Seigle

Members from the Marine Forces Pacific Band provided diverse tunes during the MCAF Family Day barbecue.

O'Halloran, commanding officer of MCAF. "We also wanted to bring families together to show appreciation for all the support they give all the Marines."

After more than 250 family members and Marines enjoyed barbecue hot off the grill, they went on guided tours through the newly renovated, multimillion dollar air traffic control facility.

The entertainment didn't stop with the tour. A weather balloon was released into the air, followed by an extraction exhibition, where emergency equipment was used to tear the top from a vehicle to remove an injured person before the vehicle burst into flames.

"This day was to bring all the MCAF families together and be thankful for all the sacrifices they make for the country," said Chief Warrant Officer 3 Kevin Jones, Aircraft Rescue and Firefighting officer in charge. "Our families are just as important to us as the Marines themselves are. They play a vital role in the success of the Marine Corps."

RECIPE CORNER

Veggies can add flavor to any meal

NAPS
Featurettes

The upcoming Easter holiday is a time of traditions. Most visible are the store shelves stocked with jelly beans, chocolates, stuffed bunnies and Easter baskets.

However, beyond the candy and the colored Easter eggs lies one of the most important traditions of all — the holiday meal with all of its trimmings. Ham, turkey, potatoes and more will cover the table when family and friends gather to share stories, memories and the meal.

This year, consider incorporating a few new traditions into your holiday meal with some help from vegetables, spiced up for the occasion and any meal-time afterwards. These suggestions are guaranteed to bring flavor, color and taste to your table.

•Get green. Nutritional research suggests the more green vegetables you eat, the healthier you will be.

•Get creative. To get your family eating more vegetables, consider a non-traditional approach. Ditch the dinner rolls in favor of a delicious broccoli cheddar cheese bread or broccoli and cheddar muffins.

•Liven up leftovers. Make a brand new meal by blending leftovers such as green beans and ham together to create a tasty casserole, a post-holiday tradition in its own right.

Even after the holiday ends, frozen vegetables are always good to have on hand. They're convenient, fresh tasting and, contrary to popular belief, contain just as many nutrients as produce at your local grocery store.

In fact, it is recommended that you eat five servings of fruits and vegetables per day to maintain a healthy lifestyle. Try the following dishes to complement your holiday meal or to create tasty leftovers.

Broccoli Cheddar Cheese Bread

Prep time is 5 minutes.

Cooking time depends on bread machine cycle.

1/2 to 3/4 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 box (10 oz.) chopped broccoli thawed

Broccoli Cheddar Cheese Bread

1/2 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
3 cups bread flour
1 tablespoon active dry yeast

Place all ingredients in bread machine pan in order listed. Use regular or medium cycle. When cycle has completed, remove bread from pan and cool before slicing.

Remember to thaw broccoli. Place unopened box in refrigerator for 12 to 24 hours. Do not thaw broccoli at room temperature.

Recipe makes a 1 1/2 pound loaf.

Green Beans and Ham Casserole

Prep Time: 15 minutes

Cooking Time: 5 minutes

2 cups cooked ham, chopped
1 can (10 oz.) cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup one percent milk
1 bag (16 oz.) frozen cut green beans
1 can (2.8 oz.) French-fried onions

In a microwave-safe casserole dish, mix ham, soup, milk and green beans. Cover and microwave on high for 10 - 12 minutes, or until well heated.

Remove and sprinkle top of casserole with French-fried onions. Return to microwave and cook, uncovered, for 3 - 5 more minutes.

Recipe makes four servings.

Hot trends hit cold foods

NAPS

Featurettes

With spring in full swing and the steamy summer months just around the corner, Americans find themselves craving fresher, lighter foods that offer relief from the sweltering heat. On menus in some of the finest restaurants across the country, cool and refreshing dishes are the highlight, from chilled soups to crisp salads and decadent frozen desserts. Fortunately, this exciting trend can easily be replicated at home.

•Fresh rules. Highlight the season's most vibrant flavors and ingredients by integrating fresh fruits and veggies into all of your meal planning. By using produce from your local market or farm stand, you can create delicious, budget-conscious meals that require very little work and are extremely nutritious.

•Pack it up. Packing a lunch can cut down not only on money spent, but also on caloric intake as well. Make a delicious cold gazpacho, vichyssoise or melon-based soup for dinner on a warm evening, and pack a serving for lunch the next day. Remember to put it in a virtually air- and liquid-tight container and be sure to use an insulated pack to keep it cold.

•Take a dip (without ruining your diet). Try adding mustard and your favorite fresh herbs and spices to yogurt and fat free sour cream to create delicious dips for fresh veggies, and carry them as a snack anywhere.

•Drink plenty of fluids. It is important to drink lots of fluids every day during the warm weather months and especially on very hot days. Don't wait until you feel thirsty — at that point you may already be dehydrated.

Most beverages, including water, will taste better chilled in a thermal pack to keep your food and drinks cold.
