Historic Hale'iwa

Take a diversion to the North Shore, where Hawaii's past comes to life

Nestled along the North Shore where the Anahulu River flows into Waialua Bay, Historic Hale'iwa Town hosts a surprising amount of history and culture, and is an excellent alternative to some of the other popular liberty destinations for Marines and Sailors in Hawaii.

The colorful Hale'iwa signs may be familiar to most who have visited the North Shore, but if you haven't yet made the turn and gone through the village, you may be missing out on some of the best food, most unique shopping, and most exciting recreation on the island of Oahu.

Hale'iwa Town began as a small Christian village in 1832, and by 1899, the seaside destination was popular with most of the city dwellers who rode the train that serviced the sugar and pineapple plantations to the end of the line.

Early visitors stayed in a grand hotel called the Hale'iwa, or the "House of the Frigate bird," built by Benjamin J. Dillingham.

Although the rails no longer service the area, and the grand lodge Dillingham built is gone, Hale'iwa is the hub of North Shore history and culture, and it's Retail outlets in Hale'iwa, like the North Shore Boardriders Club, offer authentic surf and leisurewear.

a gateway for legendary surf like that at Waimea, Sunset Beach, and the Banzai Pipeline — all of which are between five and eight miles from the town limits.

Hale'iwa has thrived as the economic hub of the North Shore, and a popular tourist destination, but it's not quite as crowded as it used to be.

In the 90s, Hale'iwa had serious traffic problems as the two-lane road running through town overflowed with cars traveling to and from the North Shore. The solution then was to build a bypass road to relieve the congestion and free up the Kameha-meha Highway for local traffic only. The bypass road did its job — almost too well — and most North Shore visitors now see the town through their car windows while passing at 35-40 mph.

The visitor slow-down brought on by the bypass road has helped Hale'iwa focus on its cultural and historical assets, and the town has a lot to offer anyone interested in Hawaii's history and surf culture.

The North Shore Surf and Cultural Museum is a must-see for anyone interested in the history of surfing in Hawaii.

Curator Steve Gould has been collecting, showing and selling vintage surf memorabilia for more than four years at the current location in the North Shore Marketplace. He offers many stories to go along with the museum pieces.

A small viewing room in the museum shows videos highlighting the surf that made Hawaii famous the world over.

For the adventure-some, surf lessons on the North Shore offer a degree of thrill that makes the lessons offered in Waikiki pale in comparison.

Surf-n-Sea, Tropical

Rush, and Strong Current are just a few Hale'iwa establishments catering to those who want to learn to surf with the big boys. Rentals, lessons and accessories are available to anyone who wants to try some real surf.

Mountain biking in Hawaii is like nowhere else, and Hale'iwa is home to one place that makes it all possible.

Bill Barnfield, the current men's senior downhill mountain biking world champion, runs Raging Isle Surf and Cycle, and he's been helping enthusiasts get their kicks by providing not only the best selection of high-end mountain bike parts available in Hawaii, but also the most friendly and helpful staff.

Mountain Bike Action magazine calls Raging Isle a "Magical Place," and the shop provides everything from ride-ready bikes to high-end performance parts to a full range of vital safety gear.

If you ride in Hawaii, Raging Isle is reason enough to make the trip to Hale'iwa. Many Marines and Sailors stationed at MCB Hawaii make the trek to Raging Isle, in the North Shore Marketplace, because of the quality service, repairs and parts. The 10 percent military discount is just icing on the cake.

Tom Capis provides general repairs as well as high-performance mountain bike maintenance and development at Raging Isle in the North Shore Marketplace.

Because visitors usually work up an appetite during a visit to the North Shore, Hale'iwa offers a vast array of eating establishments to satisfy any hunger.

Cholo's, also in the North Shore Marketplace, offers what many consider the best homestyle Mexican food around, and if that doesn't suit your fancy, there's every other type of eatery, from fine dining to shrimp vans, and everything in between.

Hale'iwa truly offers something for everyone. Fine art and pop art exist side-by-side in many of the dozen or so art galleries, and Wyland, the popular ocean scene and mural artist, has a gallery in town. Antiques, fine furniture, gourmet coffee, jewelry, and of course, swim and surf wear outlets also beckon passersby with unique design and style.

No matter what your interest, Hale'iwa is a fantastic world unlike any other found on Oahu. If a trip to the beach is all you're after, Hale'iwa Ali'i Beach Park, the site Baywatch Hawaii built and filmed at, is one of the least crowded, best-kept and clean beaches on Oahu.

North Shore Surf and Cultural Museum curator Mark Gould has been telling guests about Hawaii's surf culture for more than four years.

The Hale'iwa Ali'i Beach Park was built when Baywatch Hawaii was filmed on the North Shore. The park boasts some of the cleanest sand, nicest grass and calmest surf available on the North Shore. The beach is hardly ever crowded, and parking is never a problem.

Borrowers need wisdom, caution

NAPS
Featurettes

Getting a loan can be a confusing, even for those who really understand their finances. All must proceed with caution and good judgement when borrowing money.

While responsible lenders should fully explain loan terms, all borrowers should take their own steps to ensure they fully understand the financial options available to them.

Lisa Sodeika, vice president of consumer lending practices at Household (parent company of Household Finance Corp. and Beneficial), encourages borrowers to ask lenders a series of questions to get clarity.

She offers the following checklist as a guideline:

√ What are the monthly payments and when are they due?

Be clear on the sum of all expenses you will owe each month, when your payments are due and if the loan payments fit into your budget.

√ Is this a closed-end or revolving loan?

With a closed-end loan, you borrow a lump sum of money and pay it off over a specific period of time. With a revolving loan, as debt is paid down, you have the option of borrowing additional funds as long as the outstanding balance does not exceed a certain limit.

√ Is the interest rate of the loan fixed or variable?

A fixed rate loan sets one interest rate for the loan's duration. With a variable loan, interest rates may go up or down periodically throughout the loan's term, based on an interest rate index (usually within certain limits).

√ Can the rate or the monthly payment change?

If you have a fixed interest rate and term, your payment will not increase during the term of the loan as long as you make payments on time. With a variable rate loan, payments can change based on the interest rate index.

√ If you make every monthly pay- ment in full and on time, when will this loan be paid off?

Be aware of the term of the loan, that way you can plan appropriately to achieve your short- and long-term financial goals.

√ What is the annual percentage rate (APR)?

The annual percentage rate is the actual interest rate you pay on your loan

Cpl. Jason E. Miller

(including the costs of obtaining credit).

√ Beyond interest rate, what are the other costs involved?

Be aware if there are additional fees associated with your loan such as origination costs, annual fees or loan processing fees.

√ Is the loan unsecured or are you using your home or personal items such as your car to secure the loan?

Unsecured (personal) loans are not secured by collateral (such as your home) or personal property and thus typically have higher interest rates. Secured loans have lower interest rates, but require borrowers to secure the loan with collateral such as real estate, a savings or investment account or other valuables.

√ Does the loan have a prepayment penalty?

A prepayment penalty is a fee charged for paying off a loan in full prior to the stated term. Some lenders now offer borrowers the choice of accepting a lower-rate loan with a prepayment fee or a higher-rate loan without one.

√ Are there other products in addition to the loan such as optional credit insurance, that you are buying?

Additional products, such as credit insurance, may provide additional security; however, it is important to ask your lender how much these products cost and how much they can actually help you.

(Editor's Note: The Personal Services department at Marine Corps Community Services and the Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society both offer financial counseling.)

Prevent fraud, theft using sensibilities

NAPS
Featurettes

You can give yourself the credit you deserve if you follow some simple fraud prevention techniques.

The experts at Chase Manhattan Bank recommend you follow some simple do's and don'ts:

The Do's

• Do report lost or stolen cards immediately.

• Do protect your cards as if they were cash. Always know where they are.

• Do make sure you get your card back after every purchase.

• Do regularly check your billing statement and verify the amounts of your purchases.

• Do make a list of all your cards and their numbers and store it in a safe place.

• Do check your cards periodically to make sure none is missing.

The Don'ts

• Don't leave your cred-

Cpl. Jason E. Miller

Always protect your credit card and PIN number, and be sure to verify all purchases on your monthly statements.

it cards in your glove compartment.

A surprisingly high proportion of all credit card thefts are from glove compartments.

• Don't write down your PIN number. Memorize it.

• Don't volunteer any personal information when you use your credit card — other than by displaying personal ID as requested by a merchant.

• Don't lend your card to anyone. You are responsible for its use if you lend it to someone.

Some credit card misuse can be traced directly to family and friends.

• Don't disclose your PIN to anyone. No one from a financial institution, the police or a merchant should ask for it. You are the only person who needs to know it.

When selecting a PIN, avoid the obvious — your name, telephone number, date of birth or any simple combination thereof.

Final Words

All credit card companies provide fraud protection, but still remember to verify every purchase and always know where your card is.

Sooner or later, estate issues play catch up

Most avoid discussing death matters, though families need guidance

NAPS
Featurettes

Many family members may experience not only sorrow at a loved one's passing but also confusion and uncertainty.

Right away, many questions can begin to surface: Did dad have a will? Where is it at? Where did he put his military discharge papers? Did he say he had two bank accounts or three or four?

One of the best ways to inform loved ones of estate-related matters is to sit down and put everything in writing.

It may even be wise to use a preprinted, "fill-in-the-blank" guide to direct organizational efforts and ensure that important details are not overlooked.

These guides are helpful because they include pages for important estate and financial information. As well, there are sections for recording final arrangements and cemetery information.

Put it in writing

Your family needs:

• Personal statistics, such as your Social Security number and date and place of birth, the birthplace of your mother and father, your mother's maiden name, and information relating to your military service.

• The location of your will; the name and contact information of its executor; and the name, address and phone number of the attorney who prepared it.

Plus, note the location of all checking and savings accounts and safety deposit boxes.

• A listing of credit card accounts with account numbers and expiration dates; all life insurance policies, including policy numbers, company names and beneficiaries.

Describe real estate holdings with addresses, property descriptions and locations of deeds.

• Final arrangement wishes should be explained in detail such as where the memorial service should be held, who should preside, and what music should be played.

Let your family know if you prefer a traditional burial with a casket or cremation. Consider where you wish to be buried, or, if you choose cremation, if you want the ashes scattered or kept in an urn.

If you own cemetery plots, be sure to include this information.

Worth Repeating: "The real measure of your wealth is how much you'd be worth if you lost all your money."

RECIPES

Meals big on taste can compliment budgets

NAPS
Featuring

A new recipe booklet is stirring things up for family meals, showing that hearty fare doesn't have to cost a lot, nor does it have to take hours for the busy cook to prepare.

Chef Francesco Rinaldi and member chefs with the American Culinary Foundation have produced a recipe booklet that offers 20 great selections, including appetizers and main courses, lighter pasta dishes to heartier fare, special sections on chicken and seafood Italian-style, plus a few recipes "just for kids."

This recipe for Lasagna Rolls comes from the booklet's pasta section, and is a super-easy yet novel twist on an Italian favorite.

NAPS

Lasagna rolls are a quick and easy meal idea.

Lasagna Rolls

- 12 cooked lasagna noodles
- 4 oz. (1/2 cup) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 15 oz. ricotta cheese

- 1/2 cup frozen spinach, thawed and drained
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Pinch of parsley
- Pinch of basil
- Pinch of nutmeg
- 16 oz. Francesco Rinaldi Traditional pasta sauce

In a medium mixing bowl, combine cheeses and spinach and season with salt and pepper.

Add basil, parsley and nutmeg; blend well.

Lay lasagna noodle flat on a cutting board. Place 2 tablespoons of the cheese mixture on the end closest to you.

Carefully roll halfway, flattening a little with a gentle pat and then continuing to roll to the end.

Repeat this with the remainder of the cheese mixture and pasta.

Heat pasta sauce, either on stovetop or in microwave.

Place 3 rolls at a time in a microwave-safe dish; cover and microwave on High for 1 1/2 minutes.

Repeat with remainder of rolls. Pour hot pasta sauce over each roll. Garnish with parsley and sprinkle with cheese.

Recently, Francesco Rinaldi became the first pasta sauce to be honored with the ACF's Seal of Approval. The award is presented to products that meet the organization's standards of quality, based on extensive testing carried out by a panel of member chefs.
